Introduction:

This data is provided for academic research purposes only. All users of this data should acknowledge the James M. Kilts Center, University of Chicago Booth School of Business, in any working paper or publication that uses any portion of this data.

This is historical data. The products referred to in the UPC files are not for sale.

From 1989 to 1994, Chicago Booth and Dominick's Finer Foods entered into a partnership for store-level research into shelf management and pricing. Randomized experiments were conducted in more than 25 different categories throughout all stores in this 100-store chain. As a byproduct of this research cooperation, approximately nine years of store-level data on the sales of more than 3,500 UPCs is available in this database. This data is unique for the breadth of its coverage and for the information available on retail margins.

The Dominick's database covers store-level scanner data collected at Dominick's Finer Foods over a period of more than seven years. The database contains two types of files: category-specific files and general files. The general files contain information pertaining to all the categories in the project.

This manual contains information on:

- Part 1: Customer Count Files: The Customer Count file contains information on store traffic and coupon usage, by store.
- Store-Specific Demographics
  - The demographics file contains detailed information based on the US Government census.
- UPC Files
  - The UPC files contain one record for each UPC in a category (xxx stands for the category acronym). They contain information about product name, size, commodity code, etc. The files are sorted by UPC
- Movement Files
  - The movement files contain weekly sales data for each UPC in each store for over 5 years. The variables included in these files comprise: price, unit sold, profit margin, deal code, etc. The files are sorted by UPC, store, week.
- Download Table and Data
  - This section contains a table of all data types and their UPC and Movement data download links.
- Dominick Store locations
- Map of Dominick stores
- Week Decode table

Part 1: Customer Count Files

The customer count file includes information about in-store traffic. The data is store specific and on a daily basis. The customer count data refers to the number of customers visiting the store and purchasing something. Also in the customer count file is a total dollar sales and total coupons redeemed figure, by DFF defined department. These figures are compiled daily from the register/scanner receipts.

Part 2: Store-Specific Demographics

The demographics file consists of store-specific demographic data. The data originally comes from U.S. government (1990) census data for the Chicago metropolitan area. Market Metrics processed this data to generate demographic profiles for each of the DFF stores. The table below gives the descriptions for all the files in the demographics database.

Files can be downloaded from www.chicagobooth.edu/research/kilts/marketing-databases/dominicks/demo

The account file contains the following variables.

Variable Name	Description
age9	% Population under age 9
age60	% Population over age 60
ethnic	% Blacks & Hispanics
educ	% College Graduates
nocar	% With No Vehicles
income	Log of Median Income

shopbird	% of Shopper Birds
shopindx	Ability to Shop (Car and Single Family House)
shpindx	Ability to Shop (Car and Single Family House)

Part 3: UPC Files

The UPC files contain a description of each UPC in a category. The files are named upcxx, where xxx is the three-letter acronym for the category.

Obtain files by UPC code from this download list or by going to Section 5 of this manual.

Remarks

1. UPC: The last five digit of the UPC number identify the product, the remaining digits identify the manufacturer.
2. Commodity Code: This is DFF's version of categories. A single file can contain more than one commodity code. However, a single commodity code cannot be present in more than one upc file.
3. Item Code: This is DFF's attempt at tracking products across multiple upcs. If two different upcs have the same nitem, then one is a newer version of the other. This scheme is not foolproof. There are many instances where two upcs have different nitem codes although they are the same products.
4. Item Code: The last digit of the item code is in most case a 0 or a 1. 0 means that the item was drop-shipped (i.e., sent directly from the manufacturer to the store). 1 means that the item was warehoused by Dominick's before being sent to the store. Products that have the same item code except for the last digit are the same.
5. Description: 5 special characters may appear in the upc description:
  - # means that a product is on sale in Combo stores only (stores with a pharmacy)
  - < is for trial size products (it is not accurate)
  - ~ is for discontinued items
  - $ and * do not mean anything
6. Case: This is the number of items in the cases coming from the manufacturers, it is not seen by consumers.

Variable	Description	Type	Length
upc	UPC Number	Numeric	8
com_code	Dominick's Commodity Code	Numeric	8
nitem	Dominick's item code	Numeric	8
descrip	Product Name	Character	20
size	Product Size	Character	6
case	Number of items in a case	Numeric	8

Part 4: Movement Data by UPC

The movement files contain sales information at the store level for each upc in a category. The information is stored on a weekly basis. The files are named wxxx where xxx is the three- letter acronym for the category.

Obtain files by UPC code from this download list or by going to Section 5 of this manual.

Remarks

1. UPC: This is the key to use while merging with upc file.
2. Price, Quantity and Movement: DFF will sometimes bundle products (E.g., 3 cans of tomato soup for $2). In such occasion, the 'qty' variable will indicate the size of the bundle (E.g., 3), the price will reflect the total price of the bundle (E.g., $2), but move will reflect the number of actual item sold, not the number of bundles.

Hence, to compute total dollar sales, one must do the following calculation:

3. Profit: This variable indicates the gross margin in percent that DFF makes on the sale of the UPC. A profit of 25.3 means that DFF makes 25.3 cents on the dollar for each item sold. This yields a cost of good sold of 74.7 cents.
  - a) Note however that the wholesale costs in the data do not correspond to replacement cost or the last transaction price. Instead we have the average acquisition cost (AAC) of the items in inventory. This, of course, grates against what economists believe to be the relevant cost for rational decision making.

More precisely, the chain sets retail prices for the next week and also determines AAC at the end of each week, t, according to:

There are two main sources of discrepancy between replacement cost and AAC. The first is the familiar one of sluggish adjustment. A wholesale price cut today only gradually works itself into AAC as old, higher priced inventory is sold off. The second arises from the occasional practice of manufacturers to inform the buyer in advance of an impending temporary price reduction. This permits the buyer to completely deplete inventory and then "overstock" at the lower price. In this case AAC declines precipitously to the lower price and stays there until the large inventory acquired at that price runs off. Thus, the accounting cost shows the low price for some time after the replacement cost has gone back up.

Peltzman, Sam, Prices Rise Faster Than They Fall, Working Paper No. 142, The University of Chicago

4. Sales: This variable indicates whether the product was sold on a promotion that week. A code of 'B' indicates a Bonus Buy, 'C' indicates a Coupon, 'S' indicate a simple price reduction. Unfortunately, this variable is not set by DFF on consistent basis (I.e., if the variable is set it indicates a promotion, if it is not set, there might still be a promotion that week).
5. OK: This is a flag set by us to indicate that the data for that week are suspect. We do not use flagged data in our analysis.

The UPC files contain the following variables:

Variable	Description	Type	Length
upc	UPC Number	Numeric	8

store	Store Number	numeric	3
week	Week Number	Numeric	3
move	Number of unit sold	Numeric	8
price	Retail Price	Numeric	8
qty	Number of item bundled together	Numeric	3
profit	Gross margin	Numeric	8
sale	Sale code (B,C,S)	Character	8
ok	1 for valid data, 0 for trash	Numeric	3

Organization

The files are sorted by upc, store, week.

Part 5: Download Table and Data

Use the UPC and Movement links below to download the category-specific datasets. Remember that the UPC files are named upcxxx and the movement files named wxxx where the xxx refers to the three-letter acronym used for file or variable naming purposes.

When the Dominick's data was collected, DFF priced products by 16 zones. Within each zone, there was supposed to be a uniform regular price (promoted prices are the same, chainwide). However, these 16 zones amounted to four price tiers: Cub-Fighter, low, medium, and high. Some stores in the database do not have a zone assignment as these stores came on-line after 1992 when the zone information was obtained.

Part 7: Map

The SAS files contain a week variable that codes the week for which a data point is recorded. The table below converts calendar weeks into database weeks.

You can use your browser's "Find" function to jump to a specific week.
